

POLS 378 : International Political Economy

Explores the interactions and tensions between states and markets in the international political economy. Examines both current and past events with international political and economic ramifications and theories that seek to provide systematic explanations for the economic behavior of states, multinational corporations and international financial institutions. (Subfield Designation: IR) (A.R.T.S Designation: T)

Credits 3

Prerequisites

POLS 111 and POLS 270

Attributes

Alternate Year

Diversity International

Pre-req

Upper-Level